#21376 UTAH DAISY, Erigeron ulahensis
Utah daisy is a perennial herb with upright branches topped with blue, pink, or less commonly white, rayed heads of flowers produced in springtime. The plant grows mainly in rock crevices or often where there is some shade from an adjacent shrub or rock. Sometimes confused with asters, it too belongs to the sunflower family.

Hi!
I heard the Dept. of Energy is subsidizing recycling of radioactive scrap metal from Oak Ridge, TN for car parts, cookware, medical devices, and children's toys. Please set standards that don't allow any radiation levels at all in any kind of recycling. Please don't let any more people get sick from such a preventable cash transaction. Thank you,
